Omaha Based QAT IT Staffing Launches New Web Site

OMAHA, NE – February 11, 2009 – QA Technologies Inc., an industry-leading professional IT consulting, recruitment, and temporary staffing firm based in Omaha, Nebraska, is excited to announce the launch of a new QAT IT Staffing Solutions web site that can be found at www.omahaITstaffing.com.

“Karie Barrett, our Creative Development Director created a site design with a unique look and feel that really conveys our brand. It contains a wealth of information for both job seekers and employers, it also goes into great detail about what makes the company different,” said Brent Hodgens, QAT HR Manager. “Her work has resulted in a site that is a critical resource for our target users. It is already meeting our marketing and communications objectives and is setting us apart from the competition.”

QAT is a leading interim, permanent, and managed staffing company placing information technology professionals. The new site is for people with these skills who are seeking new opportunities and for employers who are looking to hire professionals for short-term, long-term, or permanent positions. “Our 14+ year track record and commitment to the highest level of personal service has always set us apart. Our new website will make us even more unique in the recruitment industry by enhancing the level of service we can offer. It will expand our reach and put tools and information directly in the hands of job seekers and employers,” said Rollie Stephens, founder and Vice President of QA Technologies.

The new omahaITstaffing.com aims to serve as a destination site for active job seekers and all professionals interested in career-long learning and development in the Omaha metro area. It includes QAT’s most current local, regional, and national opportunities. It links visitors with useful readings, references, web sites, and trade materials. The site also includes success stories based on real experiences of QAT clients and associates, and other regularly updated information.
